

DIRECTORS BAY

Previously owned by the Directors of Shell Oil, this beautiful, dramatic dive site in the middle of nowhere, has the shortest swim-out on Curacao and plenty for divers and snorkelers to enjoy.

Paranoid about shark attacks, the Directors built a cage around the shallow sandy area on top of the drop-off, so they were safe when swimming and snorkeling. Once they realised that there were no sharks, the cage fell into disrepair and was left to collapse. Lucky for divers, this makes this steeply sloping wall dive even more interesting, as the debris has become part of the reef and home to heaps of critters. This steeply sloping wall is lively and healthy with lots of the 'usual' stuff to look out for: lots of hard and soft corals, heaps of tropical fish, moray eels and seahorses and turtles if you're lucky.

JOURNEY TIME	SHORE ENTRY	FACILITIES	NON-DIVERS
15 mins from The Dive Bus	Stairway leads from the parking lot down to the white pebble beach. Booty fins are recommended but the water entry itself is dead easy and the reef is right there...	No facilities or security on site - leave NO valuables in your vehicle	Excellent, easy snorkeling, chill out on beach, or explore the Curacao wilderness, Quarantine House and rocky beach-combing.
